The Fort St. Joseph Archaeological Project and Western Michigan University’s Department of Anthropology presents:

41st Annual Archaeological Field School

Summer II:
June 30 – August 19, 2016

Discover history and search for evidence at Fort St. Joseph, one of the most important 18th-century French trading posts in the western Great Lakes.

Students will gain hands-on experience in proper archaeological field techniques including excavation, site survey, wet screening, record keeping, and mapping. This collaborative archaeology research project provides the opportunity for intensive study and public outreach as we live and work in Niles, Michigan, in partnership with community supporters who participate in site investigation and interpretation.

Course: ANTH 4900/ ANTH 6900
Credit: 6 credit hours/ variable
Instructor: Dr. Michael Nassaney

Applications Available February 1, 2016
Due March 15

The Fort St. Joseph Archaeological Project is made possible through Western Michigan University and the City of Niles, Michigan

For more information and to apply visit: www.wmich.edu/fortstjoseph/field-school