The Fort St. Joseph Archaeological Project and Western Michigan University’s Department of Anthropology Present:

The 42nd Annual Archaeological Field School

Summer II: June 28 – August 17, 2017

Time to get dirty! Come explore the rich history of Michigan by uncovering evidence at Fort St. Joseph, an 18th-century French trading post in Niles, MI.

Students will be able to experience first-hand how excavation is conducted at a nationally recognized archaeological site. They will analyze artifacts lost and abandoned hundreds of years ago by the French, British, and Native peoples. While living alongside community members, students will specialize in engaging and educating the public about the archaeology in their own backyard.

Course: ANTH 4900 / ANTH 6900
Credits: 6 credit hours / variable
Instructor: Dr. Michael Nassaney

Applications Available
February 1, 2017
Due March 15

For more information and to apply please visit: www.wmich.edu/fortstjoseph