“Social Media in China: an update”

A talk by

Dr. King-wa FU 傅景華

Fulbright Visiting Scholar, MIT Media Lab
Associate Professor of Journalism and Media Studies, The University of Hong Kong

4:00 p.m. Wednesday, March 1, 2017
1028 Brown Hall

Dr. King-wa FU is currently Fulbright Visiting Scholar at the MIT Media Lab. He is Associate Professor of Journalism and Media Studies, The University of Hong Kong. He received PhD in journalism and media studies from The University of Hong Kong, a master’s degree in Social Sciences and a MPhil in Engineering from Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. He was a journalist at the Hong Kong Economic Journal before turning to academia.

Dr. Fu is principal investigator in several research projects funded by Hong Kong agencies including ”Diffusion of Social Topics and Political Information on Chinese Microblogs: A Network Perspective”, "Can online opinion reflect public opinion? An investigation into the interplays between online opinion, public opinion, and mass media", "Understanding and Analyzing Online Public Opinion in Hong Kong Cyberspace", "Young generation’s Internet use and civic engagement in Hong Kong and Beijing: a comparative study", and "Microblogging in China: a systematic analysis ". Those projects have generated 60 peer-reviewed journal publications including Journal of Information Technology & Politics, Communication Reports, Information, Communication & Society, The China Quarterly, and Science.