1. Explain briefly and clearly the proposed improvement.

We propose to loosen the restriction on ED 3500 to include the major in Child and Family Development, which is housed in the Department of Family and Consumer Sciences (FCS).

2. Rationale. Give your reason(s) for the proposed improvement. (If your proposal includes prerequisites, justify those, too.)

Changes to state and federal regulations make it advantageous for students in other majors (i.e. Child and Family Development) to be allowed to take classes currently restricted to Early Childhood majors/minors. Enrollment in professional level courses for Elementary Education has decreased. FCS students cannot currently meet state regulations for preschool lead teachers. The removal of the current enrollment restrictions would increase the number of students in ECE classes and provide needed courses to FCS students.

3. Effect on other colleges, departments or programs. If consultation with others is required, attach evidence of consultation and support. If objections have been raised, document the resolution. Demonstrate that the program you propose is not a duplication of an existing one.

There will be no effects on other colleges, departments or programs. The only potential effects of this change may be an increase in Child and Family Development majors and students taking the Early Childhood sequence of courses. However, this effect will not adversely impact the Department of Family and Consumer Sciences, as the students will be adding TLES courses to their current programs without eliminating any FCS courses (see letter of support from the Chair of FCS).

4. Effect on your department's programs. Show how the proposed change fits with other departmental offerings.

Due to the Professional Readiness Exam administered by the state of Michigan, enrollment in all of the professional level teacher preparation courses has decreased. Opening the Early Childhood courses to other majors will increase enrollment in the Early Childhood professional sequence of courses. Because the state has created an opportunity for preschool teachers to obtain majors and minors beyond teacher education, opening this course to Child and Family Development majors fits with the TLES mission. TLES will continue to offer Early Childhood pedagogy.

5. Effects on enrolled students: Are program conflicts avoided? Will your proposal make it easier or harder for students to meet graduation requirements? Can students complete the program in a reasonable time? Show that you have considered scheduling needs and demands on students' time. If a required course will be offered during summer only, provide a rationale.

Students who are planning to become elementary teachers but are unable to pass Michigan's Professional Readiness Exam (PRE) have little option but to seek a major or program outside of the College of Education and Human Development. Opening up the Early Childhood Education courses will provide an alternative for students who were planning to complete Elementary Early Childhood Education but were unable to pass the PRE and enter professional level courses.

6. Student or external market demand. What is your anticipated student audience? What evidence of student or market demand or need exists? What is the estimated enrollment? What other factors make your proposal beneficial to students?

With decreases in the number of graduates of Elementary Early Childhood Education, pre-kindergarten programs are having difficulty locating staff that meet the state staff requirements. This class is one that will help Child and Family Development majors fulfill the state lead-teacher requirements. This is likely to double the number of students that TLES has in the Early Childhood sequence of courses. Students who had hoped to be in Elementary Early Childhood Education will also have a minor option that allows them to stay within the teaching field. Head Start and state funded programs across the country will preschool teachers with the Child and Family Studies and Early Childhood combination.

7. Effects on resources. Explain how your proposal would affect department and University resources, including faculty, equipment, space, technology, and library holdings. Tell how you will staff additions to the program. If more advising will be needed, how will you provide for it? How often will course(s) be offered? What will be the initial one-time costs and the ongoing base-funding costs for the proposed program? (Attach additional pages, as necessary.)

There will be no effect on resources. Following a years of declining enrollment, the Department of Teaching, Learning, and Educational Studies (TLS) has the capacity to accommodate these extra students using existing faculty resources.

8. General education criteria. For a general education course, indicate how this course will meet the criteria for the area or proficiency. (See the General Education Policy for descriptions of each area and proficiency and the criteria. Attach additional pages as necessary. Attach a syllabus if (a) proposing a new course, (b) requesting certification for baccalaureate-level writing, or (c) requesting reapproval of an existing course.) NA
9. List the learning outcomes for the proposed course or the revised or proposed major, minor, or concentration. These are the outcomes that the department will use for future assessments of the course or program.

Learning outcomes will not change.

10. Describe how this curriculum change is a response to assessment outcomes that are part of a departmental or college assessment plan or informal assessment activities.

This curriculum change is in response to an informal assessment of state regulations and employer needs.

11. (Undergraduate proposals only) Describe, in detail, how this curriculum change affects transfer articulation for Michigan community colleges. For course changes, include detail on necessary changes to transfer articulation from Michigan community college courses. For new majors or minors, describe transfer guidelines to be developed with Michigan community colleges. For revisions to majors or minors, describe necessary revisions to Michigan community college guidelines. Department chairs should seek assistance from college advising directors or from the admissions office in completing this section.

This course is not a part of current articulation agreements.

Current Catalog Copy (2016-17)

ED 3500 Young Children, Their Families, and Their Society Students in this course will study the effects of family, peer group, and society on the development of young children. Emphasis will be placed on family styles and child-rearing practices and their effects on learning and other behavior. Family constellations, the learning of sex roles, the effects of divorce, and similar phenomena will be studied. Consideration will be given to the effect of cultural and subcultural differences on early childhood development and students will look at the contemporary American scene as it affects young children. Program requires a grade of "CB" or better. May repeat course one time only. Restricted to majors/minors in early childhood professional education. 3 hours

Hi Jim,

I appreciate the proposal to remove some of the enrollment restrictions on the courses you list below to improve access by our Child and Family Development majors.

This does allow for an important additional career option for some of these students.

We in FCS appreciate the inter-departmental collaboration.

Subject: Another Letter of Support Needed

Gary,

We have another curriculum change which needs a letter of support from FCS.

In order to enable FCS students to meet the state requirements for employment as lead-teachers in preschool settings, we are removing the enrollment restrictions on 5 of our courses. These changes will allow FSC students who are majoring in Child and Family Development to take the following TLES courses:

ED 3090
ED 3500
ED 3690
ED 4700

On our curriculum change forms, we have indicated that these changes will have no effect on your department, other than to provide an additional career option to your students. Please indicate whether or not you agree with this claim.

Thanks.

-Jim
