Guatemala Community Health and Permaculture

Lake Atitlan, Guatemala offers a stunning landscape surrounding a volcanic lake, and rural Mayan communities who have lived in this part of Latin America since antiquity. Take this study abroad course to partner with communities and non-governmental organizations in San Lucas, San Jorge, and Panahachel over Spring Break. Make transformational connections by raising up people and communities, contributing to the health and wellness of families, and learning about food sovereignty, public health, and family education. Available as an elective and for Area IV gen. educ. cred.

Jennifer Harrison, jennifer.harrison@wmich.edu

English (conversational Spanish a plus)

IPE 3050/6050 (Elective and/or Area IV Gen Ed)

GPA: 3.0; Ability to walk and lift independently

$1950 (includes all stays, programming, food)

Spring 2019 (travel March 1-10 Spring Break)

Applications will open by June 1, 2018, and are due by November 1, 2018; only available to the first 12 qualified students so apply early to reserve your spot.

Travel to Lake Atitlan, Guatemala and create transformational connections in Meso-America

Financial Aid can be applied to study abroad, including Kalamazoo Promise and Michigan Education Trust.

This course is eligible for the Haenicke Institute for Global Education Study Abroad Scholarship

Info Sessions and walk-in advising at WMU Study Abroad Office, open M-F 8 a.m. to 5 p.m

Faculty Director

Jennifer Harrison, jennifer.harrison@wmich.edu

Language

English (conversational Spanish a plus)

Subjects

IPE 3050/6050 (Elective and/or Area IV Gen Ed)

Eligibility

GPA: 3.0; Ability to walk and lift independently

Program Fee

$1950 (includes all stays, programming, food)

Program Dates

Spring 2019 (travel March 1-10 Spring Break)

Application Deadlines

Applications will open by June 1, 2018, and are due by November 1, 2018; only available to the first 12 qualified students so apply early to reserve your spot.